Knihřisk is a labor of love. Its publications represent the volunteer work of fellow collectors and are sold at prices that merely sustain production. Manufacturing or accepting unauthorized copies undercuts the efforts of contributors and may discourage further work. The only authorized source for copies of Knihřisk publications is Lunasa LLC. Please support this effort to bring out-of-print, highly specialized, or materials hidden behind the veil of other languages into the hands of collectors by refusing to accept copies from unauthorized sources. Of course, you may make print or make electronic copies for your personal use, but you must never release or keep a copy to avoid payment.

Please note that series, volumes within series, and numbers within each volume may be published non-sequentially and at irregular intervals. Suggestions for future publications or your own contributions should be sent to the published address of Knihřisk.

Caveat:

This is an amateur translation by a collector who professes no special knowledge of the Czech language. As a result, there may be unintentional misrepresentations of the meaning of the original text. The alternative would have been to keep the translation private rather than sharing it with other interested collectors. Suggestions for corrections, clarifications, or additional information should be emailed to info@knihtisk.com or sent via ordinary mail to Knihřisk, 316 Devland Drive, Winchester, Virginia 22603.

The Translator.

April 2004 – Title page and title normalized.

This working study of the Hradčany sheet for the 300h value used Volume I of the Monographs on Czechoslovakian Stamps and photographs of every stamp position on the sheet.

In all, 2,868 stamps were reviewed. Of those, only for 43 stamps could we not determine the plate position.

The accuracy of our descriptions was verified against the sheet preserved in the Postal Museum.

There are very few identifying signs for the 300h value. Thus the identification of the stamps is quite complicated and requires the greatest patience.

The eighty-ninth position of the sheet has a common marking: a protrusion on the right frame opposite the ninth spiral. It is not present on stamp positions 10, 13, 20, 30, 40, 60, 70, 72, 79, 88, and 90.

The original study done in 1986 has been revised and enlarged.
